I kept these pages blank for a while Suppose I wanted a nice quilt and penmanship. I should stop typing out how I feel on Facebook.

I keep hurting myself with the memory of you, grasping at the wing
and crying to a memory filled with smiles.

I thought I'd run out of tears if I cried enough. I often wish

I was given an impossible task
to have a hope worth holding onto.

I hold myself trying to feel memories
I don't want to let go of.

Suffocating quietly between sobs, wanting only to be held again, just one last time, so maybe I could cry out this well of tears inside of me.

Dec 5th, 18. 3ish Am.

I, Am trying to heal. You in this moment are trying to heal. It's difficult. Within your pain you find fondness, you find joy in memories. You open your arms to hug the wind but you can't grasp it.

Can I let go? You see her face, her hair, her beautiful skin in other women, and then you have a smile filled with sorrow. We can't let go because we feel she is apart of us. I don't think I'm lost in hope, or delusion as --

If we're being honest, she probably isn't coming back. She'll move on, find some of myself in someone else and push forward.

but the question is, do I care? You can't make her be with you. You're flagellating yourself with memories of love to deal with the pain of it's loss. The feeling of true given love, something that can't be imitated. We waited eight long years, to feel like pillows at a sleepover, never caring only using them, except in two cases of wanting to help someone else. I suppose pity can effect me in ways I should take note of. Either way, this one, this specific woman, over time I knew I wanted to be with her the rest of my life. Odd, coming from one who longed to kill and be killed. 4.25.22
